SAVANNAH, Ga. - Armstrong State University freshman Patricia Schmidt has been named the Peach Belt Conference's women's golf Player of the Week for a second time this season, announced today by league officials.

Schmidt was the low Peach Belt finisher at the Flagler Fall Slam. The freshman from Duernau, Germany, shot rounds of 77 and 69 to finish two-over-par 146, just one stroke behind medalist Jessica Bradley of Lynn. Her second-round 69 was the only round in the 81-golfer field to go below 70 and is the second-lowest single round in the PBC this year and is the fifth 69 shot in PBC history, tied for fourth-lowest all-time.

It was the first sub-70 round at the Flagler Fall Slam since the tournament moved to Marsh Creek Golf Club in 2010 and is the first Armstrong sub-70 round since Jenna Birch shot a 68 on Oct. 15, 2012. The second place finish was her second top-five of the year in four fall events. Schmidt is currently fourth in the PBC with a 75.1 stroke average.

This is the second weekly honor for Schmidt this season as she was also the league's women's golf Player of the Week on October 2nd.

Schmidt and the Pirates have finished the Fall portion of the schedule and will return to action in February.
